Bottom-up integrated care experiences are already taking place in Spain.

The OMIS contributes to the integrated care international movement by generating, analysing and disseminating evidence that can be of use elsewhere.

The OMIS is part of the network of the International Foundation for Integrated Care (IFIC) to help advance the science, knowledge and adoption of integrated care policy and practice globally.

INTEGRATED CARE IN SPAIN

Health and social care integration is already happening in Spain. Various innovative integrated care experiences have been put in place across the country, including:

- System integration experiences: definition of a common basket of services; patient stratification schemes; integration/interoperability of clinical and social electronic records.
- Organizational integration: accountable care organizations; coordinating committees; case managers.
- Service level integration: jointly agreed clinical pathways; new care services; etc.

The Challenge

The key challenge for the integrated care agenda to move forward in Spain lies in learning from the existing experiences, identifying what works, under which conditions and what is transferable to other organizations and contexts. There is a need to generate sound evidence that is able to support sustainable and effective system reforms.

It is necessary to intervene at every level to ensure people-centred integrated care.

INTERVENTIONS LEVELS: OMIS PYRAMID

The SPANISH OBSERVATORY ON INTEGRATED CARE

The OMIS has been launched in April 2014 as a bottom up, collaborative initiative to take the integrated care agenda forward in Spain.

We achieve this by identifying and analysing best practices, disseminating findings, transferring knowledge, enlightening debates and mobilising key actors. We:

- Identify and make visible existing integrated care experiences throughout Spain.
- Produce analyses of future trends on integrated care in Spain.
- Develop analytical tools for integrated care evaluation and comparisons.
- Learn from abroad and participate in international debates.
- Promote networking to empower experts and leaders.
